STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sweden's armed forces have crumbled on a defense program to cause the defense gap caused by the betrayal of military secrets to the Soviet Union by air force Col. Stig Erik Wennerstrom.

There is an atmosphere of almost wartime urgency at the Defense Ministry.

Lights burn far into the night as army, navy and air force officers grapple with the task of repairing the probable loss of the nation's entire defense strategy to the Russians.

Security services are working around the clock to check on other possible leaks from the military establishment or the government.

Everyone in the government, on position parties, defense staff and the newspaper industry that Wennerstrom exposed, Sweden. The tall, suave, middle-aged diplomat has confessed that he fed military secrets to the Russians for 15 years.

During the war, he had access to Sweden's entire defense strategy. Wennerstrom knew a lot about the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's defense plans and weapons. He visited NATO military installations. He was in frequent contact with Danish and Norwegian military men. He was so dominant in the defense business that he could get his hands on all the supplies Sweden needed. Sweden's most important supplies, such as gasoline, are stored in vast underground tanks in rock caverns and abandoned mines hidden in the
